ABOUT

We are a middle-age mom band originating from the Slocan Valley. Once a week for many years we would escape our families to sing and play together. During that time we have developed a large repertoire of our favourite songs. We sing cover songs from the sixties through the decades, giving these songs a unique twist with our intricate harmonies and complimentary vocals, creating a musical experience that captivates and enchants.

SNAKES AND HORSES ARE:

Laura Shaw: Vocals, Acoustic and Electric Guitar, Lap Steel

Laura first found her musical footing in the bluegrass scene, picking the banjo and playing guitar. Growing to love playing the electric guitar and rock and roll, Laura now brings these skills and influences to this trio. Her teaching, songwriting, recording experience and solo endeavours also contributes to giving these old tunes a unique and new sound.

Kim Sparks: Vocals, 12 String Guitar, Mandolin

Kim comes from a strong choir background, which drives a passion for creating our enchanting harmonies and a fresh take on old classics. An early immersion in music has lead to a passion to explore new instruments. From piano and brass in her childhood, studying classical guitar through her teens, to teaching the ukulele, this has allowed her to enrich our sound with her keen musical intuition and trained ear.

Sophie Richard: Vocals, Bass, Acoustic Guitar

Sophie's musical journey started with piano and singing as a child. Curiousity led her to the guitar, a companion to her heartfelt vocals. Collaborating with other musicians across genres, Sophie gravitated towards crafting harmonies, weaving intricate melodies with her fellow artists. Her bold vocals and broad range greatly compliment and blend with the other diverse vocals in her trio.
